Have you ever noticed that whenever two trains pass, freight or passenger, a trainman will signal, with hand or lantern, to the trainman at the rear of the other train?

This is not merely a friendly gesture. Each man makes a careful visual inspection of the other's train while it passes. Then he signals that all is well or that he has spotted some defect.

This is just one phase of a continuous "check and double check" system. All Union Pacific trains are thoroughly inspected before leaving terminal points. All station agents check each train as it passes. Even track crews, along the right of way, are alert to spot any sign of trouble.

Thus Union Pacific trains are checked time and time again as they transport passengers and freight over the Strategic Middle Route, uniting the East with the mid-West and the Pacific coast.
