

Seabee Writes From So. Pacific

The following interesting letter was recently received by Mrs. Hulienbeck of Fruitland, from Paul Hooley, MM 176, former well known resident of Fruitland, who is now with the Seabees in the South Pacific.

"Needless to say, but I was happy and quite thrilled, when I received your most welcome letter yesterday even though it was 14 months old. It must have given the postmasters quite a headache, as my address has been changed, so many times since I have been overseas. I cannot remember of ever receiving a letter from anyone before, that I enjoyed so much. I have often thought of you people and the old home town in the past ten years.

"I will try and tell you a few things about myself. I enlisted in the navy two years ago, and have been overseas almost 18 months. I was in the naval constructing end of it, and since we have been over here we have been attached to the 1st Marine Division. We have done a lot of work in the construction line here and there, in the South Pacific. I operate a bull dozer and carry all and almost anything else they need an operator for. Having done a lot of construction work back in the States I thought the Seabees would be an outfit I could serve my country the best.

"I was quite fortunate in getting to see some of my old school friends while I was in San Diego. I had quite a talk with Jim and Beulah. I also saw Amelia (Hansen) Lockney and her husband. He is associated with the Chevrolet people there. I also saw Dorothy Dotson of New Plymouth. She is married to a Lt. in the Marine Corps, and has a millinery shop in San Diego. Kelly Ransom is at Sunset Beach and Jim Reno lives at Long Beach. Seemed awfully good to talk to them and hash up old memories.

"Pauline lives in Spokane and works at the air depot. Has a very nice job. Marcus married a couple years ago and is now residing at Santa Monica. Alice and her family are still at Pomeroy, Wash. She has three children, two boys and one girl. I haven't seen any of them for years except Marcus, as I lived in San Francisco for some time.

The only person I have ever met from Fruitland in the service was Jack Hart. He was stationed at the Presidio in San Francisco at the time. He certainly is a big fellow now. I would certainly enjoy meeting up with Doc Judy, and some of the rest of the Fruitland boys down here on some of these islands. I hear from Pug now and then. He is in Italy now a 1st Lt. I don't know where Woody Fitch is located and neither does Pug even though they graduated from the same school in Georgia. Harlan Fitch writes quite often and in his last letter informed me that his son Bill was wounded in action at Tarawa.

"I wrote to Art Newman about a year ago but I have never heard from him. Have often wondered whether he was still running the barber shop there.

"These South Pacific islands are very pretty but if ever you see one you have seen them all. I do not believe they were ever intended for white men though. A person can find bananas, coconuts, lemons, and a number of other fruits on most of them. The jungles and swamps though take the beauty out of them, especially when a person has to go through them. The different native tribes are quite friendly and have proved a big help in this war. You should hear the comments of the boys when we have a movie such as "Song of the Islands," down here. Having had the pleasure to meet Dorothy Lamour a few times back in the states, I am really going to give that beautiful lady a earful about these islands when and if I get back."

Letter Comes From New Guinea

Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Harkins are in receipt of a letter from their son, Zerna, who is with the 127th Infantry in New Guinea, which gives a good description of the country and natives. The letter was written on Easter Sunday and is as follows:

"Today is Easter and this morning I couldn't find a single egg of any kind. There is no trouble about getting a new spring outfit while I am in the army any way. I plan on going to church this evening. "It rained nearly all night and has just stopped this morning. It's so muddy that there isn't a thing to do but lay around. I suppose I will be writing letters most of the day.

"I don't think I have ever told you much about the natives, so maybe you would like to know something about them. The pictures you see is how they look. A lot like a negro only their hair stands 5 or 8 inches above their head. They wear any kind or color of cloth they are able to get. The women and men alike are naked from the waist up. It seems until a girl is married she wears a top to her dress. They live in huts made of sago palm leaves. It is usually off the ground 3 or 4 feet because of it being so wet here. They all live in a village and have gardens on the hillsides around. It is surprising how many vegetables they grow. I have eaten a lot of them, such as corn, string beans, tomatoes, watermelons, and taro root. Taro root is used in the place of potatoes. They look like a yam. They are quite large and taste sweeter than any potato we grow. For meat they eat fish, bush turkey and quite a lot of other wild game found around here. There is even a few chickens around here, and in some places even cows. The women do most of the work. She carries a load in a net that fastens over her forehead and hangs down her back. The little kids even carry quite a load that way. When walking they are always in groups with a man leading the way and one belting up the rear. There are missions all over the country that the young men go to school and learn to read, and write English. Quite a few of the men can speak good enough to understand them with a little practice. Not many women talk at all.
