My name is Hermann Goering

BACK in the days when the German war machine was steam-rolling over Europe, the Reich Marshal boasted: "If one enemy bomb should ever fall in the City of Berlin, then my name isn't Hermann Goering!"

Well, Fat Boy, they've fallen—and there are plenty more where those came from! With plenty of giant bombers to bring them—and well-trained crews to see they reach their mark!

And back of these aerial armies is the productive power of free men and women—multiplied many times by electric power—turning the wheels that turn all the weapons of war.

And back of this abundant electricity is the hard work of the folks who man and manage the nation's self-supporting, tax-paying light and power companies. They provide over 80% of America's power. They keep it on tap all the time—whenver and wherever needed—for war plants and civilian uses.

Most of the American people share in the job. For they, through their savings invested in the electric light and power companies under business management, have helped to give this country the best electric service in the world—and the most—at the least cost. Only freedom of enterprise—regulation without regimentation—could have written this record!
