Fuge Host To Unusual Passenger

We have heard of "pick-ups" in an automobile, among them being hitch-hikers, girls, etc., but Weldon Fuge has about the best story yet.

One night last week Fuge was returning from Boise and while riding along quietly on the Emmett cut-off he heard a thud some place around his automobile. He stopped the car and everything appeared normal and he continued his journey. While driving quietly in the dark, something suddenly hit him in the back of the head and being somewhat disturbed he stopped the car again and found that he had picked up an owl. After some difficulty he finally got the bird to vacate the car and continued his journey on into the city peacefully. "Wise as an owl" is a well known saying and doubtless in this case is true as the bird may have realized that Fuge was lonely and wanted to do its part—Mrs. Fuge is now in the mid-west visiting with relatives.

Two Mexicans Sent Back Home

Jose Soto, 24, and Roberto Castro, 23, Mexicans at the Payette labor camp evidently became homesick last week and refused to work, the action they knew would bring reparation to them.

Their last assignment was at the cannery and when they would not work there, J. Ellis Black, camp manager; Frank Arata, representing the sponsor, E. G. Affey, the University Extension Service; Manuel Tadeo, the U. S. government, and Jose Guzman, the workers held a hearing at the camp Friday afternoon and decided that the two men should be sent back home. The verdict was most welcome to the two young Mexicans and they were put on the train at Nyssa that night to go back to Mexico.

Mr. Black of the camp reported that there was no trouble over the affair. The Mexicans wanted to go home and the group in charge was perfectly willing to let them go when they refused to work.

You Will Recognize First Post-War Ford

The first Ford cars manufactured after the war will conform closely in appearance to the 1942 models, according to information received here by S. H. Manser, Ford dealer.

The cars will be lighter, however, and will contain considerably more plastics and incorporate many improvements. Mr. Manser points out, since many advancements have been perfected by Ford engineers and research laboratories in building equipment to meet the exacting demands of global war.

"Post-war Fords probably will still be powered with the V-8 engine. For war or peacetime use, it is still the best we ever made, and we are likely to stick with it," said Mr. Manser.
