Iron Curtains
It's easier to iron curtains on a well padded wide table top than on the usual ironing board. Remember that a good way to get uniform stiffness for your curtains is to dip all those from one room into one batch of starch. And if they are tie-backs they will keep their shape better if you let them hang a few hours or overnight before tying back.

H. A. Barklow last week praised the classified page of the Independent-Enterprise when he secured results beyond his expectations with a classified advertisement that cost him only the small sum of FORTY CENTS. On Oct. 12 Mr. Barklow placed an ad in the paper advertising the sale of five dairy cows and his place for rent. By Oct. 16 the stock had been sold and the place rented. After the transaction had been completed he received twelve more calls from interested persons—all for the small sum of 40c.
